Conclusion	This is a brief written conclusion of the test.

Redacted took the "MCT - criminal groups, crimes, work discipline & drugs" EyeDetect test on 6/20/2019 at 7:15 PM and is NOT CREDIBLE because a Converus Credibility Score of 1 was attained for Unreported work-related discipline indicating that he was likely deceptive regarding his involvement with Unreported work-related discipline. Redacted attained a Converus Credibility Score of 98, 96, and 99 for Involvement with illegal drugs, Commission of a serious crime, and Ties to gangs or organized crime indicating that he was likely credible regarding his involvement with Involvement with illegal drugs, Commission of a serious crime, and Ties to gangs or organized crime.

Note: A Converus Credibility Score between 1 and 49 indicates that an examinee responded deceptively. A Converus Credibility Score between 50 and 99 indicates that an examinee responded credibly. The closer the Converus Credibility Score is to 1, the more probable the examinee was deceptive. By contrast, the closer the Converus Credibility Score is to 99, the more probable the examinee was credible.

DISCLAIMERS:

It is strongly recommended that all examinees give their prior written consent before undergoing an EyeDetect evaluation. If consent is not given, results may likely not have utility in taking action where it may be needed. For best results, it is recommended that organizations treat the information found in this report with discretion and confidentiality and on a need-to-know basis among management. For legal reasons, it is recommended that the examinee not be directly confronted regarding a poor credibility score, but that the information found in the EyeDetect report may be useful for taking preventative and/or corrective action to stop illegal and inappropriate behaviors in personnel. In some jurisdictions, a lie detection test may not be considered legal evidence to incriminate the person tested.

In screening tests, EyeDetect has an accuracy rate of 86% in classifying examinees as deceptive or credible and in diagnostic tests, the accuracy rate is 90%. If you believe the test results are incorrect, Converus recommends using a secondary method to assess the credibility of the examinee. Other methods such as a polygraph test, an interview or a drug test where applicable can be used to corroborate the results of the EyeDetect test. Depending on the accuracy rate of the secondary method used, the accuracy rate of combining both tests could be as high as 99%.
